BEEF FOR FATHER'S DAY . . Sure to Satisfy

Serve beef on Father's Day, that's the way to put a smile on Dad's face. Father's Day is just around the corner and alert shoppers should be taking advantage of the many beef specials at the meat counter. There is no better way to tell Dad he's number one than to serve beef on his special day.

This advice is passed along by the Virginia CowBelles. "Beef has always been at the top of the list when it comes to man-pleasing meals, so the best way to satisfy Dad is to serve him beef".

This is the 22nd year the American National CowBelles and the Beef Industry Council have encouraged American families to honor Dad on his day with beef. There just couldn't be a better time to buy and serve beef. Large supplies are now available and prices are attractive.

"Beef for Father's Day has become an American food tradition" says Barbara S. Bennett, of the Virginia CowBelles, "and no wonder, Beef is America's favorite food. Always available. Always a cut for every budget. Always easy to prepare. Always sure to satisfy Dad and the whole family".

The Virginia CowBelles advise shoppers to watch for the colorful displays that will guide them to their favorite store's "Beef for Father's Day" specials. If you need suggestions for preparing beef for Father's Day, the Virginia CowBelles have prepared a new pamphlet featuring beef recipes from Virginia. You will find these at the meat counter in most Virginia stores.

CowBelles are the female arm of the Livestock Industry, which is the "Backbone of America".

ENERGY SAVING TIPS FOR THE WEEK

June 2 - June 8

1. If you must wash only a small load of clothes - such as special fabrics - reduce the water level in your machine corresponding-ly. You'll save energy, and water, too.
2. When remodeling your kitchen, resist the temptation to build cabinets or counters too closely around your standard refrigerator. Although the "built-in" style may look nice, it will restrict air circulation, causing heat build-up. This will cause the compressor to work harder and longer - and waste energy!
3. After baking pies or cakes, allow them to cool out-of-doors. They may well cool off faster - and the heat won't build up inside your kitchen.
4. Clean the heat reflector below the heating element on your stove - it will reflect the heat better and shorten cooking time.

Smooth "footwork" is crucial to good gasoline mileage. You'll get the best fuel economy by smooth, steady accelerator pressure for cruising conditions. Gradual accelerations and braking are also helpful. Hard acceleration pours more fuel into the engine for more power, but the fuel is incompletely burned and mileage suffers.

6. When purchasing a new water heater, select a unit with high heating efficiency and with thick insulation.
7. Reduce peeking into the oven to a minimum. Your curiousity can be costing wasted energy. Every time the door is opened, the oven temperature drops 25-50 degrees. If you must be a "peek-a-boo" cook, a stove with a window in the door could be a wise investment.
